upon arrival here
we all perceived it:
fear.
the unknown seemed to
oppress us
at every opportunity.
unfamiliar places
and strange faces
all conspired to create in us a longing for home,
for friends and family,
for love and understanding.

who among us
has not experienced
the sometimes not so fleeting suspicion that the decision to come here
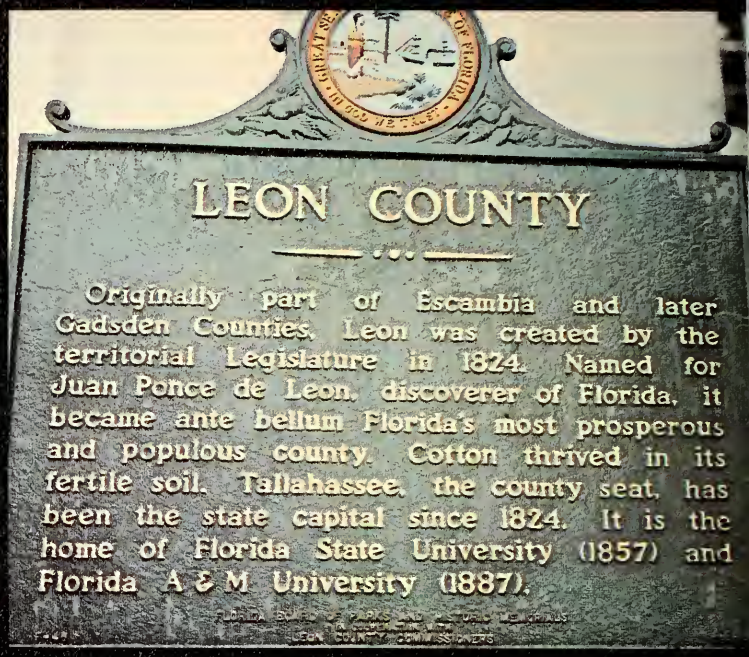
was all wrong?



LEON COUNTY
Originally part of Escambia and later Gadsden Counties, Leon was created by the territorial Legislature in 1824. Named for Juan Ponce de Leon, discoverer of Florida, it became ante bellum Florida's most prosperous and populous county. Cotton thrived in its fertile soil. Tallahassee, the county seat, has been the state capital since 1824. It is the home of Florida State University (1857) and Florida A & M University (1887).

we settled down
to learning's labor and wondered if
it were possible
to survive it all.

those first few days of chaos
and confusion,
the sleepless nights
full of anxiety
will never be forgotten.
they were our first classes, the beginning of our education
when we began to cope with change
and observed how others
dealt with it.

can you remember when it was that you made
your first friend here?
at lunch ...
or after class ...
on that first dateless weekend night?

perhaps the roommate
assigned to you by chance turned out to be more personable than the ogre created by apprehension and your imagination.

was it a familiar face from home that brought together two who barely knew each other?
chance and fortune
work their change upon us,
the former strangers
now become fast friends.

time now takes on
new significance for us ...
instead of being
man-made measured beats it now becomes relative to the situation.

weeks seem to pass
like years
when thinking of a love
back home,
on some other campus
or away at war.

i'm just a typical american boy from a typical american town, i believe in god and senator dodd and keeping old castro down.
and when it came my time to serve, i knew better dead than red;
but when i got to my old draft board, buddy this is what i said:

sarge - i'm only 18, got a ruptured spleen and i always carry a purse.
i've got eyes like a bat and my feet are flat and my asthma's getting worse.
consider my career, my sweetheart dear, and my poor old invalid aunt.
besides i ain't no fool, i'm going to school, and i'm working in a defense plant.

i've got a dislocated disc and a wracked-up back, i'm allergic to flowers and bugs.
and when a bombshell hits, i get epileptic fits and i'm addicted to a thousand drugs.
i've got the weakness woes, can't touch my toes, and i can hardly reach my knees.
and if the enemy came close to me, i'd probably start to sneeze.

i hate chou en-lai and i hope he dies; but one thing you've got to see.
if someone has to go over there, that someone isn't me.
so i wish you well, sarge, give 'em hell and kill me a thousand or so.
and if you ever get a war without any gore, i'll be the first to go.

shakespeare said
the world's a stage

and all the men and women merely players

but this is incomplete:
life is a flick
and each of us a star
but more than that,
we also write our scripts and film this great celestial joke — the camera is the mind and fantasy the footage upon which it is recorded — each man an editor
and censor selecting what he wants to see — those things which please him and ignoring those that do not

we sometimes share our shooting time and script with others who have similar editorial sentiments:
these for whom we cast
a sympathetic role
we call our friends
and lovers.

so that the plot
does not at all times
seem too serenely sweet we save space
for those selected by us to serve as enemies,
the villains of the piece.

sometimes it all goes smoothly.
occasionally inspiration lends a touch of genius
to our work
and all too briefly separates our cinematic message from the multitude of others.

there are times
when the whole thing resembles a grade b script
thoughtlessly cranked out, spliced together with cliches, seemingly designed to drive us wretching
from our seats
to demand our money back — if we could but find the ticket taker — sadly we realize
we did not pay to get into the flick nor may we pay to leave it:
we only pay while we are here,
with pain,
desperately trying to understand what its all about
and hoping,
hoping all in vain
that we will have enough film left to put it all together and glean some meaning from it just before ...

the end.

welcome to the campfire of the wandering gitanos. the roving caravan of thieves, vagabounds, and minstrels had put aside its trickery to entertain the queen and her court. acro-gypsies was the 21st annual production of gymkana . . . a series of shows which through the years have proven to be one of the highlights of the campus. the production was divided into three main parts: the internationally known gymnasts, talented coeds, and tallahassee's famous tumbling tots.

the "crowning" point of the evening — mary bauer, miss gymkana for 1969.

the tallahassee tumbling tots show their exceptional talents once again.

strength, agility, and poise are all characteristic of gymkana performers.

christmas spirit

pervaded the fsu campus. in the university union, decorations promoted the holiday atmosphere with lights and tinsel. caroling at the president's home, "secret pixie" visits, and tree trimming parties in the dorms were among the campus activities. another side of christmas was displayed, as apo sponsored its annual white christmas on landis green. the fifth annual madrigal christmas dinner was complete with english customs, costumes, and minstrels. the traditional menu consisted of roast pig, plum pudding, and other english favorites.

earth day

april 22

was earth day. millions of people gathered on college and high school campuses all over the nation to learn about the deterioration of man's environment. but the ultimate goal of earth day, however, was for action. the success or failure of the event laid in the number of people who would continue after earth day to save the environment. "do not ask for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee" was the central theme of fsu's observation of earth day. students, faculty and members of the community gathered on landis green to discuss the environment. various booths were set up to distribute information on different environmental topics. birth control information was available at the population booth, while the dangers of air and water pollution were described at another. to portray the population explosion, a 20 to 30 foot "sardine can" was assembled. a person entered the can every 7 seconds and one was removed every 15 seconds to symbolize the birth and death rate in the world today. seventeen motion pictures on natural and wildlife resources and pollution were shown continuously.

a candlelight

march through the florida state campus initiated fsu's observance of the vietnam moratorium with about 3,000 members of the university community participating. the march left landis green and wound through the campus, growing in size as students left their homes and dorms to join. headed by a black coffin borne by four students and flanked by students carrying small american flags, the marchers sang anti-war songs. the call for a moratorium was part of a nationwide effort to indicate the strength of anti-war feeling in america to the nixon administration. over 600 colleges and universities participated in their own moratorium day activities ranging from special religious services to the complete shut-down of many schools. the march was followed by an all-night vigil on landis green. throughout the 24-hour period, the names of the 38,000 american dead in the vietnam war were read. the next morning several faculty "teach-ins" were conducted on landis green, followed by panel discussions which covered six different aspects of the war. an interfaith religious service was held and a folk sing-in rounded out the activities for the day.

if it had to be said in one word
it should be this: courage.

courage to sacrifice
to endure pain
to accept responsibility

courage to seek one's physical limit and work to extend that limit to be satisfied with nothing less than the best effort

courage to be humble in victory to share the rewards
the plaudits
and the knowledge that it was all together this day

courage
to try to understand it to analyze what brought it about ... to resolve to work to prevent it for no one likes defeat yet everyone must know it and lastly courage to go on to demand of one's self the courage to have courage ... and finding it

that's what winning is about the coaching staff plays an essential part in helping to produce a winning football team. this year coach pete, in his ninth year at fsu, was fortunate enough to be aided by several assistant coaches, each of whom contributed much to the seminole's 6-3-1 season. and, off the field, the coaches were equally as enthusiastic this year. led by athletic director vaughn mancha and the athletic board, their energies were spent trying to encourage a doubtful administration and an unwilling student body to permit the allocation of eight dollars per student per quarter to intercollegiate athletics. another major endeavor was to work for fsu's admittance into the southeastern conference.

the end of the road or the start of a new one . . . professional ball. it's something special to them — undefined, but special. the last homecoming — the last home game — and finally the last game — a sudden realization that for some there isn't another season, another game, another practice. blood, sweat, and tears . . . time and effort . . . poured forth unselfishly . . . for some there was the big play — cappleman's record breaking season, abraira's 92 yard punt return on national tv, vohun's 22 yard td interception runback and the penalty for running off of the field with the ball, guthrie's toe, saving the game more than once — a good year, but not a great year — post season disappointment — some say, "wait until next year" . . . . . for the seniors there is no next year.

for the first time in four years, the florida state football team was absent from the post-season bowl picture. fighting through a rough schedule, the seminole gridders finished the season with a 6-3-1 season. tribe signal caller bill cappleman finished his career among the top five in the nation in passing offense for the '69 season with 2,467 yards. he also took the fsu career title with 4,877 yards in two seasons as starting quarterback.

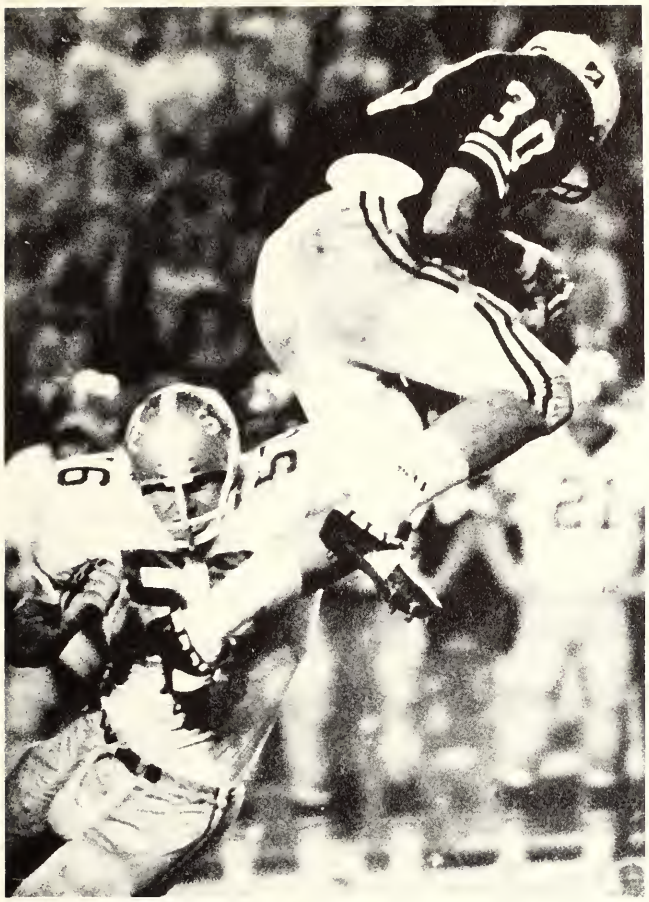
the first game of the season was held in the mud of campbell stadium as the seminoles easily outswam the wichita state shockers 24-0 in a steady downpour. on to miami the following weekend, the seminoles took on down-state rival university of miami before 55,000 fans in the orange bowl. the talented toe of grant guthrie saved the day when he kicked three tri-pointers, one for 53 yards and a florida state record. a cappleman to gaydos touchdown pass rounded out the tribe scoring as the seminoles edged out the hurricanes 16-14.

a tough

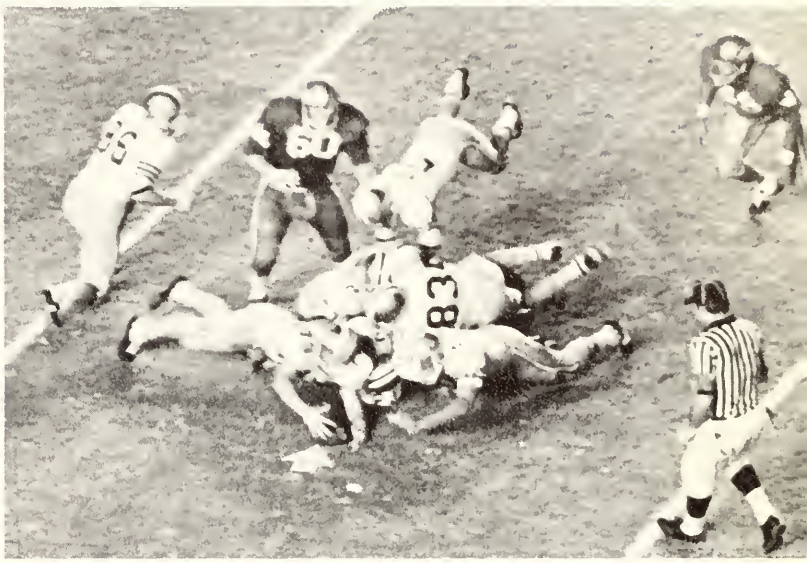
defense and an unstoppable passing combination were all the gators needed in the mud of florida field to beat the seminoles 21-6. cappleman was harrassed all afternoon by the gators' defensive line and was able to connect for only one tally. the florida combination of quarterback john reaves to all-america flanker carlos alvarez picked the tribe defense to pieces. the seminoles bounced back the following weekend as fsu hounded the university of tulsa 38-20 on the losers' home field. back in campbell stadium, the tribesmen barely got by a surprisingly tough mississippi state team 20-17 before meeting south carolina the following weekend for homecoming. the seminoles awoke with a roar as they ran the peach bowl-bound gamecocks out of tallahassee by a score of 34-9.

the gobbler

jinx struck again as the tribesmen found themselves knotted with virginia tech 10-10 at the end of a cold and windy afternoon in blacksburg. grant guthrie gained the tie with his tremendous 52-yard field goal. with several bowl scouts in attendance, the seminoles wanted to be at their best. but their best wasn't enough, however, as the tribe fell to a bowl hungry memphis state squad 28-26 in campbell stadium. key interceptions and fumble recoveries by the tigers knocked the 'noles out of the bowl picture for the year.

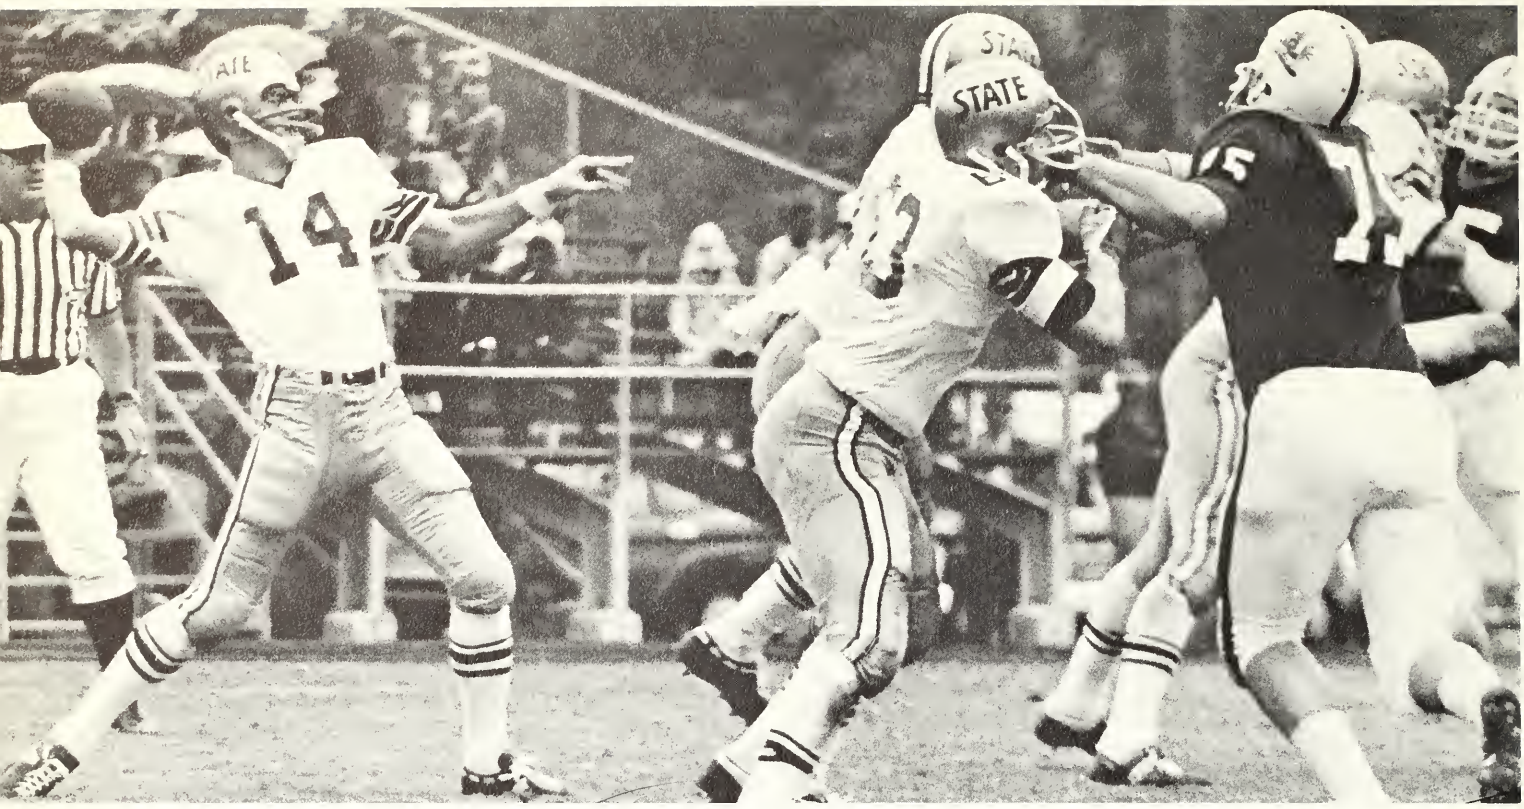


bill lohse puts it to a tiger running back.



frank vohun pounces on a hurricane fumble to stop a miami drive.

tom bailey racks up more yardage against south carolina which helps insure the seminoles' homecoming victory.



one of the greatest quarterbacks to play football at florida state, bill cappleman, throws another touchdown pass.

appearing on regional television from tallahassee, the seminoles put on a good show for the viewers with a convincing 33-22 win over north carolina state. smarting from their 40-20 loss from the seminoles at the end of the previous season, the houston cougars put it to the 'noles in the astrodome 41-13. fsu was trailing by 31-7 at the half, but injuries to magalski and bailey slowed and narrowed the seminole attack as the cougars made the tribe's final note of the season a sour one.

pride in fsu

has always been reinforced by the performances of the marching chiefs. spending countless hours in drill and preparation on the bandfield, they never failed to put forth a beautiful and precise half-time performance. mr. robert braunagel continued to direct the chiefs this year and was ably assisted by herschel beazley, who served his second term as drum major. seminole fans saw much creativity in the half-time shows this year. homecoming featured a "those were the years" theme, beginning from the days of fscw and continuing to the present. the grand finale included a peace symbol, "let the sunshine in", and a sequence from "hair". john boda wrote another of the chief's half-time shows, entitled band ballet no. 2. others performed were the 2001 show and selections of music from the blood, sweat, and tears.

roughest schedule in seminole history, the varsity basketball team went on to its best record in fsu basketball history and gained national ranking in the ap and upi wire polls. the cagers finished the season with a 23-3 record and ranked as high as ninth in the nation during the season. the seminoles finished eleventh in both polls. led by such outstanding seniors as dave cowens and willie williams, the tribe went on to defeat such powers as oregon, louisville, army, dayton and gave second-ranked jacksonville university one of its two losses for the season in an 89-83 tully gym thriller. fsu's three losses came at the hands of nationally ranked north carolina, southern california and an 85-81 loss to the dolphins in the jacksonville coliseum.

of the fsu gymnastics team is one of the great athletic traditions in the united states. 56 team championships have been won including 5 national team championships. sixteen members have won reputations as olympic team members or as individual national champions. this phenomenal record was curtailed when the athletic department dropped gymnastics as an intercollegiate sport in may, 1960. however, gymkana has continued with varsity competition on a regional basis. a women's gymnastics team has also been added to the program.

here are instruments
of change:
the voice of government,
the printed page
with which we may make known
our sentiments (at least to those who read — or bother to —)

perhaps they seem
at times
not as effective
as they should be.

we have the right
to alter such conditions.
however,
to secure alterations
requires involvement and participation.

how many of us see it as our duty to so do?

a coalition

party, the independent student party, wrested major positions from the incumbent action party in the largest turnover ever for student government elections. action party, which had held most of the major offices since its formation four years ago, was challenged by two new parties, isp and the now party. in addition, the worthingtonian party added humor to the campaign with its less serious approach to the elections. the candidates for student government president were chuck sherman, isp; wayne rubinas, action; rock leveille, now; and rick eyerdam, worthingtonian party. although the main issues included more adequate student representation, women's rights, controversy over dormitory funds and regulations, distribution of finances, block seating, and student participation in initiating courses, the deciding factor seemed to be the student dissatisfaction with the incumbent party's inaction. as a result of the large election turnout — despite long lines and cold weather — the slight margin of votes necessitated a runoff for almost all offices.

the highlight of the runoff was the disappearance of that morning's flambeaus, which carried now party's endorsement of isp's candidates. by the end of the day action, isp, now and many others had all been accused of absconding with the papers for various reasons. when the final count came in isp — a coalition of dorm residents, off campus residents, blacks, greeks, scholarship house residents, married students and others who had not previously been very involved in campus politics — had defeated the incumbent greek-oriented party, winning almost all offices on the slate.

conscious of

its responsibility to represent and serve students, fsu's student government made expansive gains this year. no longer a passive organization, it has become a force to be reckoned with. no other year has seen a stronger student voice in the decision-making process. closer cooperation with the board of regents and student governments from other universities throughout the state has strengthened the base from which a responsible student government is derived. constant efforts to serve the entire fsu community resulted in many "firsts"; one of major importance was the academic appeals board which offers redress for any student to contest a grade he feels he received unjustly.

wayne rubinas is aided by anne johnson in reading the names of the american war dead in vietnam during the october moratorium.

the legal aid

officer, another "first", provided free legal advice to all fsu students. possibilities for a rathskeller became more imminent and women's rules were relaxed considerably. active communication with constituents became a reality. visitations to the residence areas, extensive use of the flambeau and five months of weekly television programs were all used to keep the students informed. student government also showed evidence that it is no longer a society of the elite. emphasizing its motto "to communicate is the beginning of understanding", a serious attempt was made to involve as many students as were interested in the decision-making process. student participation on committees swelled and the enthusiasm of becoming involved is student government soared. it was a very progressive and productive year.

the active pulse beat of student government, was more diverse this year than ever before. factions representing every segment of the student body came together to discuss the problems of students. in particular, a larger representation of more liberal-minded attitudes pumped vigorous new blood into the senate. one major accomplishment of this body was the allocation of the student activities budget, totalling nearly two million dollars. the senators spent many hours studying the numerous individual budget requests and gave of their time at several special senate sessions. also, an appropriation of funds for involvement in november's moratorium, although defeated, was a healthy indication that student senate was willing to become involved in any controversial issue that might affect students. student senate has come far in its attempt to represent all areas of the student body. hopefully, this trend will continue, for student senate will remain a vital force in student government only as long as it represents all of the students at fsu.

fighting for

retention of legislative power was the major concern of the association of women students during the early part of the year. after student senate passed a bill abolishing the legislative rights of aws, women students campaigned effectively and succeeded in defeating the proposed amendment in fall elections. although aws made changes in rules concerning women students, it also sponsored educational programs for men and women students. despite the defeat of the senate amendment, aws lost its legislative powers at the end of the third quarter when they were declared unconstitutional by the supreme court on the basis that it was discriminating among the students.

when the

freshman girls arrived on campus this year, they faced the new and rather frightening responsibility of being on their own. the girls who were there to help them over the rough spots were the junior counselors. giving of their time and experience, the jc's helped in many areas such as setting up governmental structures within the dormitories. they also played a vital role in aiding the new freshman girls socially by answering questions, giving advice, and just being available. on a campus the size of florida state university, it was a welcome thought for the younger girls to know that at least somebody cared. and the jc's did care. without them, few freshman girls would have handled their new way of life as wisely or as beneficially as they did.

the union

board has accomplished much this year in furthering the development of the university and the union. under the direction of paul durrett, university union director, and in cooperation with the student-oriented union board headed by david fuller, the union has handled many new projects and affairs. it has completed and approved both the house rules and the constitution. a planning organization for the rathskeller has also been organized. in the athletic department, new pool facilities have been approved and an agreement has been made with the athletics and physical education departments regarding the pool and bowling lanes.

coordinating

programs and events to meet the needs of the university community was the prime objective of the program council, which consists of the union committee chairmen. as a result of the council's willingness to work for the students, the grand funk railroad, pat paulsen, blood, sweat and tears, the lettermen and others were able to perform on the florida state campus. the human rights symposium, held in february, included adam clayton powell, john sack, and ralph nader as speakers. other activities headed by the council were dances, swimming and tennis lessons, teas for the foreign exchange students, a bridal fair, canoe trips, and a trip to nassau.

no major

policy changes were determined by the board concerning student publications in the past year. since the censorship controversy of two years ago, the board of student publications has retired into the background of publication administration although students have acquired an active voice on the board. during the course of the year, particularly at election time, some questions were raised concerning the effectiveness of the board. the basic responsibilities of the board continued to be the hiring of editors, supervising operation of the production labs, and administering the money allocated by student government for publication purposes.

the individual as an integral part of the university reflected the new concept and form of florida state's yearbook. as a part of the nationwide trend, the tally ho became less formalized than the stereotyped issues of previous years. this broader scope gave the editors and staff the opportunity to take a more creative and meaningful approach to production of the book. the staff combined hard work, talent, and long hours to publish a yearbook that would be relevant to the rapidly changing university community.

was in a period of transition last year with innovation the key word. the traditional concepts of collegiate press had been changing during the sixties and the flambeau reflected the shifts in ideas. big pictures and big copy with several different style name plates highlighted the changes. several special editions, including an election summary, offered variety to the daily menu provided by editor sam miller and his staff.

issues of the smoke signals were published this year as the publication again ran into difficulties. the main selling point of the first issue seemed to be the body-painted nude on the cover which sold one thousand copies on the first day. working with a very small staff, editor michael jegart put out the second issue of the humor magazine during winter quarter. for a variety of reasons, a third edition was never published.

their ideals of service, friendship and equality among women of all races and creeds, the girls of gamma sigma sigma can be found giving needed service around the florida state campus and in the community. every year they work at campus elections, usher at campus movies and the circus, and work daily at the infirmary. gamma sigma sigma has also worked closely with the children at sunland hospital. since its establishment on the fsu campus six years ago, alpha kappa chapter has won the margaret linton award which honors the chapter with the most outstanding service record for two years in a row. they have also received the national association for retarded children award for service and the march of dimes award for the southern region.

drug use

was the subject of a survey conducted among students at fsu by the circle k club. this survey was used as a means to decide whether or not to support the "legalization" of marijuana or harder drugs on a realistic basis. bob lamp'l, president of the circle k club at fsu, was the chief mover in the surveys, on which the service club spent well over 100 working hours. two surveys were conducted; one was concerned with the entire student body and the other was directed at one of the dormitories. according to the campus-wide survey, circle k found that 32.3% had tried marijuana and of those, 48.6% still used it. the survey also showed that campus-wide, 73.3% of those questioned favored changing the legal classification of marijuana use from a felony to a misdemeanor, while 52.2% favored legalizing it. at the same time, in the campus-wide survey, 6.7% had tried harder drugs, but only 5.8% favored legalizing them.

"some men

see things as they are and say 'why?' i dream things that never were and say 'why not?' " — george bernard shaw. with the above quote as its challenge and general policy, the wesley foundation is seeking to become a community of healing and reconciliation in a divisive and strife torn world. beginning at home, it is committed to an experiment based on the supposition that students, faculty and administrators can learn to trust one another and live together in a meaningful dialectic relationship even in the midst of the tension of their differences; that black and white can become but varying colors of a community of men living in trust, love and support of one another; that human life is far more valuable than any disputed racial, social or national boundaries and that the university can relate its knowledge, insights and skills to the urgent needs of the world. "why not?"

incorporated is a non-commercial association of college women interested in fashion and good taste in clothing. this organization was established in 1955 under the fashion institute department and has since grown considerably in size. one of the big activities for the year was a fashion day which was held during winter quarter. a designer from new york was the guest speaker as well as many speakers from local and nation-wide department stores. a fashion show was also held with the girls modeling the clothes which they had made during the year.

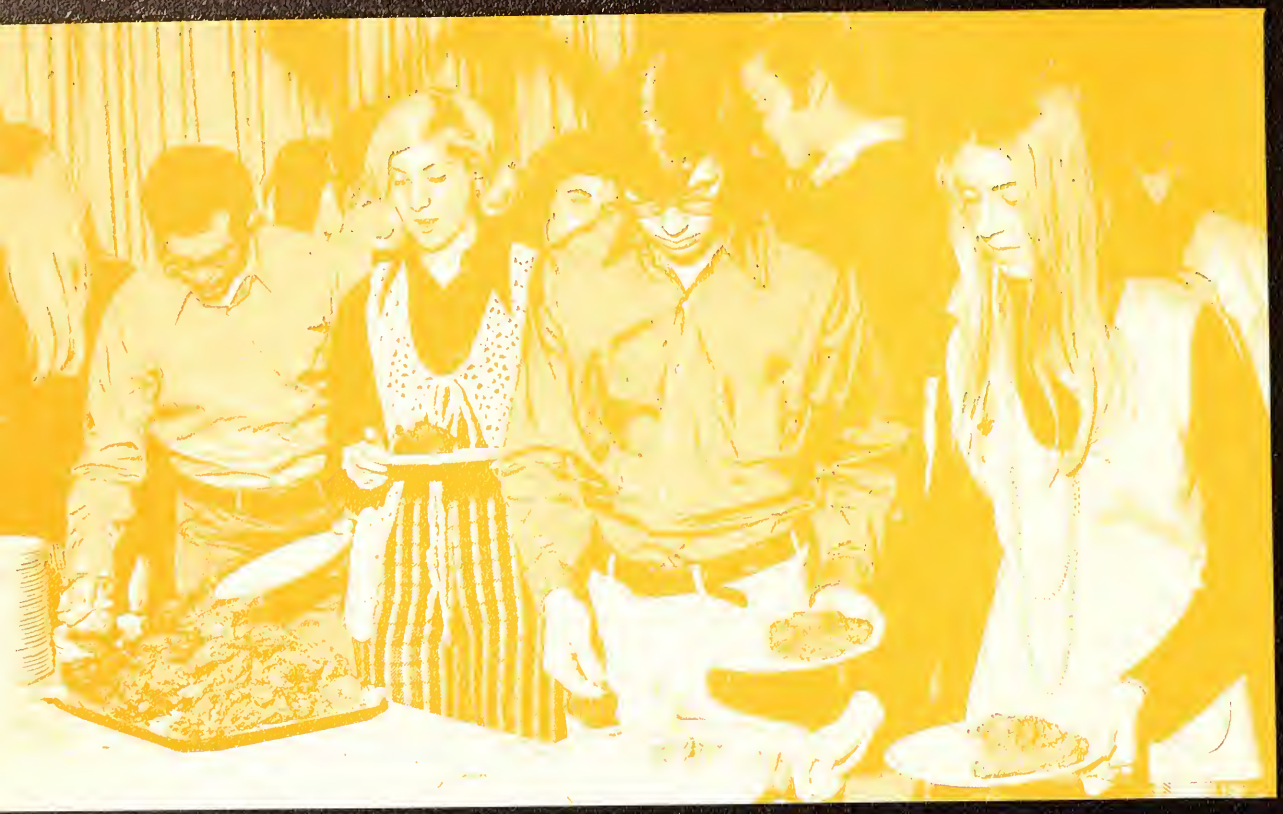
greeks



being greek
in a world
where brotherhood
seems bankrupt
can be a rich
and warm experience.
to accept
a code of conduct which embraces
love, fidelity, friendship and honor among brothers and sisters
and to follow it faithfully, is the test of true character.
there are those who fail the test
for greeks are human too.

but he who knows
and shares his brother's triumphs
and his tragedies
finds in himself
a sense of understanding and compassion
for all men
everywhere.
and in this sense,
this feeling
is manifested in the true spirit of brotherhood.
would that all men
could share it ...

controversial

is by no means an unused word at florida state — especially when used to describe our new president. stanley marshall's five months as acting-president were marked by demonstrations, arrests, and confrontations, as well as pro- and anti-marshall movements. the university divided over his actions; a division which may be long in healing. a year after his appointment the campus had quieted, but perhaps only as the quiet before a storm. stanley marshall will certainly be a strong president. his talents are impressive. his liabilities are yet to be measured.

participating in more effective student-faculty relationships was the quality on which ten professors were dubbed as outstanding. a committee of students at large with departmental recommendations chose the ten men on their noted reputations, contributions to the university and their pursuance of better student-faculty relationships. their individual quotes show their involvement in the unification of florida state university, which can only be accomplished through better communication between its faculty and its students.

dr. stephen s. winters — geology

mr. francis n. millett — law

"faculty have a commitment that goes far beyond the search for knowledge. it involves instilling in students the enthusiasm and discipline of the mind that are the natural outgrowths of a love of learning. and this commitment only begins in the classroom. as partners in learning, faculty and students must assume the responsibility to listen with interest and to speak with sincerity on all topics of mutual concern, both in and out of the classroom. the environment of learning is not confined by time or space. it is an order to develop this kind of environment that effective student-faculty interaction must take place."

dr. stephen s. winters

"i have not experienced another period of time in which communication and the emphatic sharing of experiences between people were more important than now. formal education, to me, is that priceless period of time taken from one's life to set a pattern, a foundation, for what will remain a lifelong search for an understanding of oneself, the world in which one lives and his role in it, his fellow man and his God. a faculty member must share his experiences in the search including his special discipline and reach out to attempt to understand the experience and needs of his students. mutual respect for each other's humanity and recognition of our common search offer some hope that the two-way avenue of communication and experience will remain open."

— richard fallon

mr. richard fallon — speech

mr. charles rovetta — business

dr.conrad tanzy-english

"responsible student involvement in university matters which effect them should be welcomed, not feared."

—francis millet

"a major concern of the university should be learning. learning involves the active participation of both the teacher and the student. when faculty and students join together in this pursuit, good faculty-student relations generate rewarding intellectual experiences for both. it is from this environment that a great university emerges."

—charles rovetta

"if a university community is to achieve its ends — to search out as much truth as possible — effective student-faculty relations are essential. these are achieved when the faculty and students prize their own and each other's integrity. the university whose faculty do not value the insights of their students and whose students expect all wisdom to reside in their faculty is an institution fast abandoning the search for truth. it is ceasing to be a university and is becoming a museum. on the other hand, there is no point at all in students sitting before a faculty who have nothing to teach."

—conrad tanzy

"i admire the creativity, integrity, and adaptability of university students today. these traits are revealed most clearly when youth are involved in decision-making regarding policies and programs which have a direct impact upon themselves. the adult establishment might focus upon its responsibility for ameliorating those problems which contribute to youth alienation in our culture. when this responsibility is undertaken it will no longer be necessary for the establishment to project blame on the student community and we can move along with the important tasks before us. my students have kindly shown me this is possible."

—thomas phelps

"young people have asked faculty members to step out from behind the podium and, at least occasionally, to abandon the security of a narrowly defined field of expertise. the faculty has responded with surprising flexibility and the result has been an increased participation in the educational process from both sides. today's campus is not only less divided and more intellectually alive, it is also more aware of its responsibilities to society. this change has produced some tension and insecurity among both students and faculty, but it also promises a possibility of restoring the exchange of knowledge to its rightful place at the center of university life."

—david ammerman

dr. thomas phelps — criminology

dr. david ammerman — history

dr. robert a. spivey — religion

mr. thomas wright — music

dr. ross oglesby — government

"matthew arnold once remarked that when we have become comfortable, we'll have to decide what to do with ourselves. the university is the place in our culture where faculty and students can explore what to do. more than ever, the university is called to be a human community in which learning, thinking, questioning, and the creating of visions are effected by students and faculty together."

—robert spivey

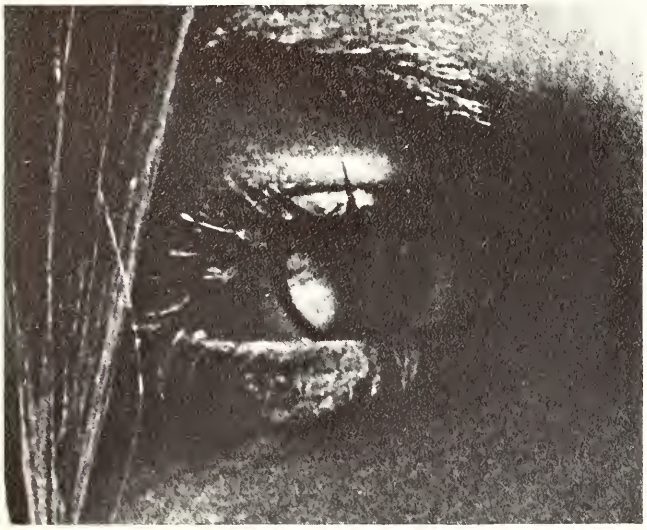
"as florida state university continues to grow in size and our instructional program continues to expand, we are all challenged to create imaginative methods of preserving the precious commodity of close student—teacher contact which has been a treasured tradition of our campus."

—thomas wright

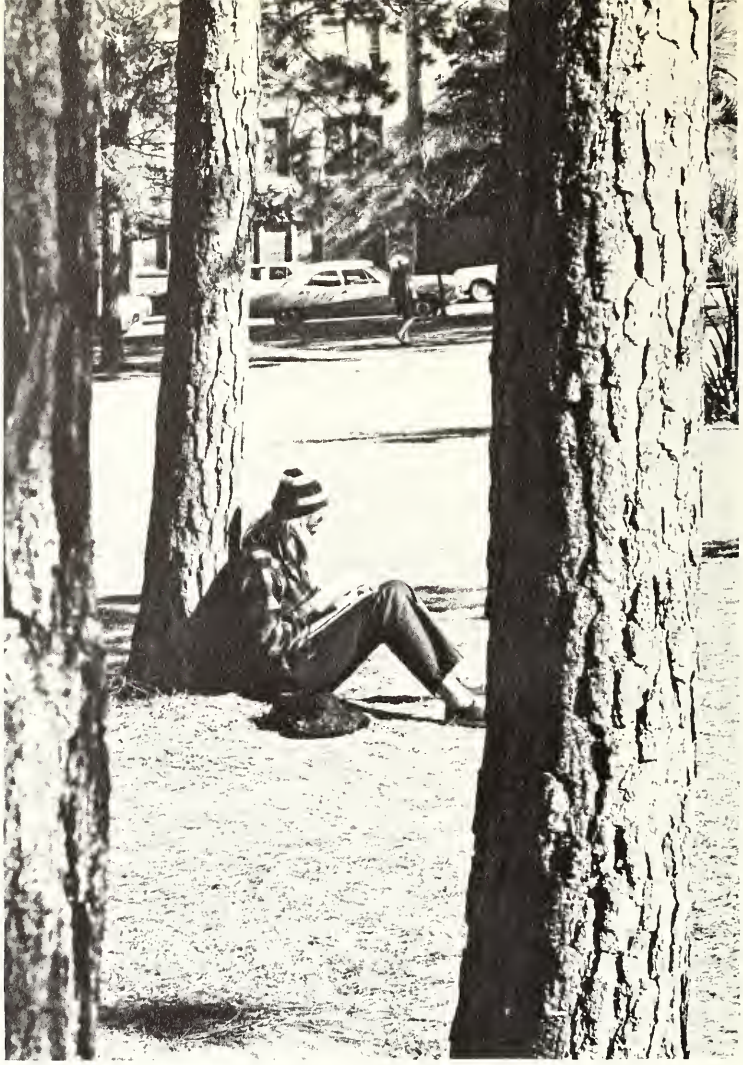
"when both student and professor reach the boundary line where knowledge for both stops and ignorance for both begins, it is that point that the rich rewards of a companionship of learning truly begin, for it is then that the distinction between student and teacher begins to diminish."

—ross oglesby

"in the right state he is man thinking. in the degenerate state, when the victim of society, he tends to become a mere thinker, or, still worse, the parrot of other men's thinking."

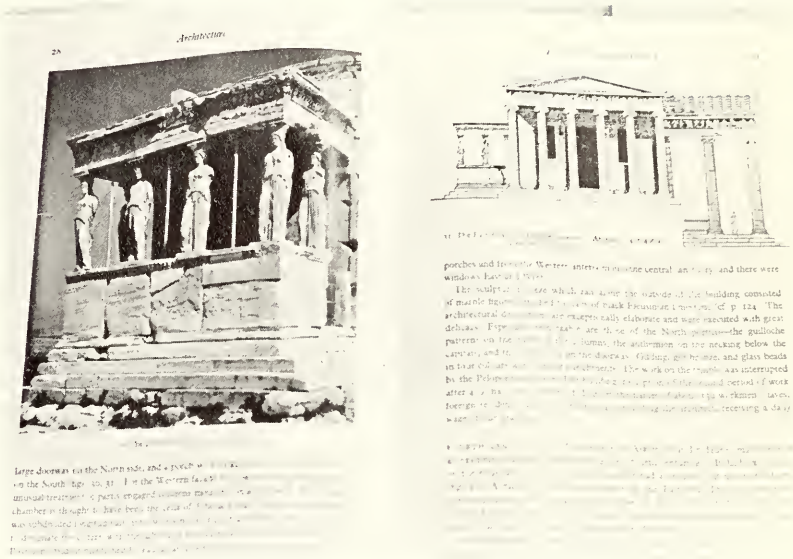


"the sluggish and perverted mind of the multitude, always slow to open to the incursions of reason, having once so opened, having once received this book, stands upon it, and makes an outcry if it is disparaged. colleges are built on it."

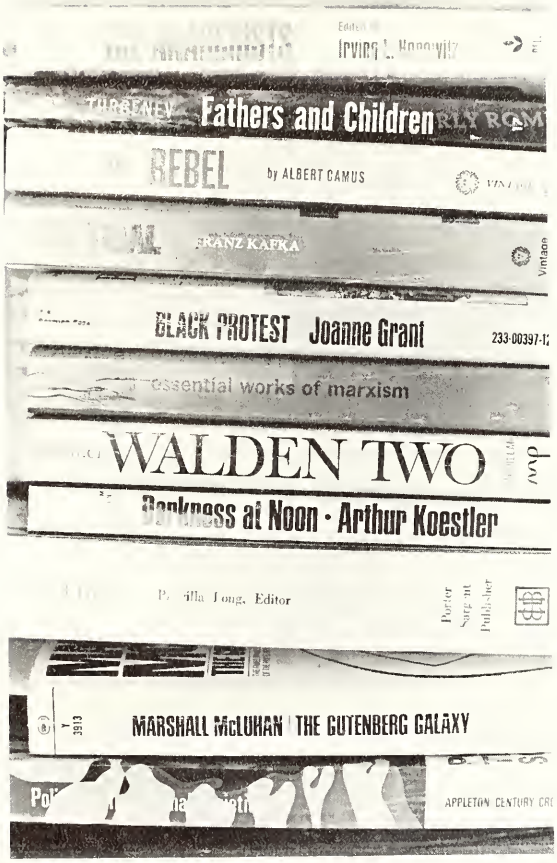


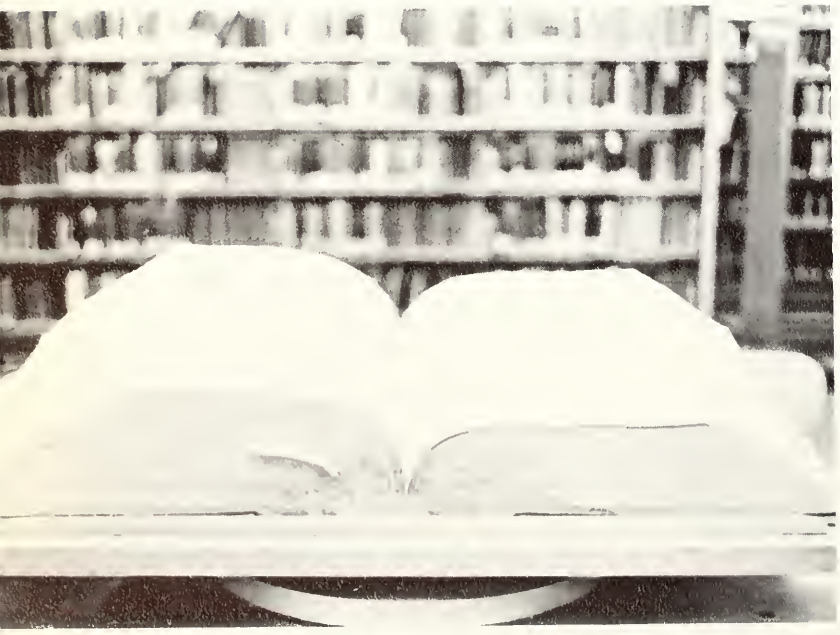
"the first in time and the first in importance of influences upon the mind, is that of nature. — he must settle its value in his mind. what is nature to him?"

"the next great influence into the spirit of the scholar is the mind of the past,— in whatever form, whether of literature, of art, of institutions, that mind is inscribed."



"books are the best of things, well used; abused, among the worst."





"the book, the college, the school of art, the institution of any kind stop with some past utterance of genius. they look backward not forward. but genius always looks forward. man hopes. genius creates."

"when the artist has exhausted his materials, when the fancy no longer paints, when thoughts are no longer apprehended and books are a weariness,"

"—he has always the resource to live. character is higher than intellect. thinking is the function. living is the functionary. the stream retreats to its source."

"in self-trust all the virtues are comprehended. free should the scholar be, —free and brave. free even to the definition of freedom, 'without any hindrance that does not arise out of his own constitution.' brave; for fear is a thing which a scholar by his very function puts behind him. fear always springs from ignorance. so is the danger a danger still; so is the fear worse. manlike let him turn and face it. let him look into its eye and search its nature, inspect its origin,— see the whelping of this lion, —which lies no great way back; he will then find in himself a perfect comprehension of its nature and extent; he will have made his hands meet on the other side, and can henceforth defy it and pass on the superior. the world is his who can see through its pretension."

classes

you are the children
of change
now grown to young adults who have had the fortune to study at this university.
it has been a mixed
blessing.
not all you have learned here has been pleasant.
nor should it have been so
for the evil that man is capable of working on the world
is a cruel and senseless power.

yet you have seen man's most shining moments,
studied his achievements
and know that should he only choose to do so
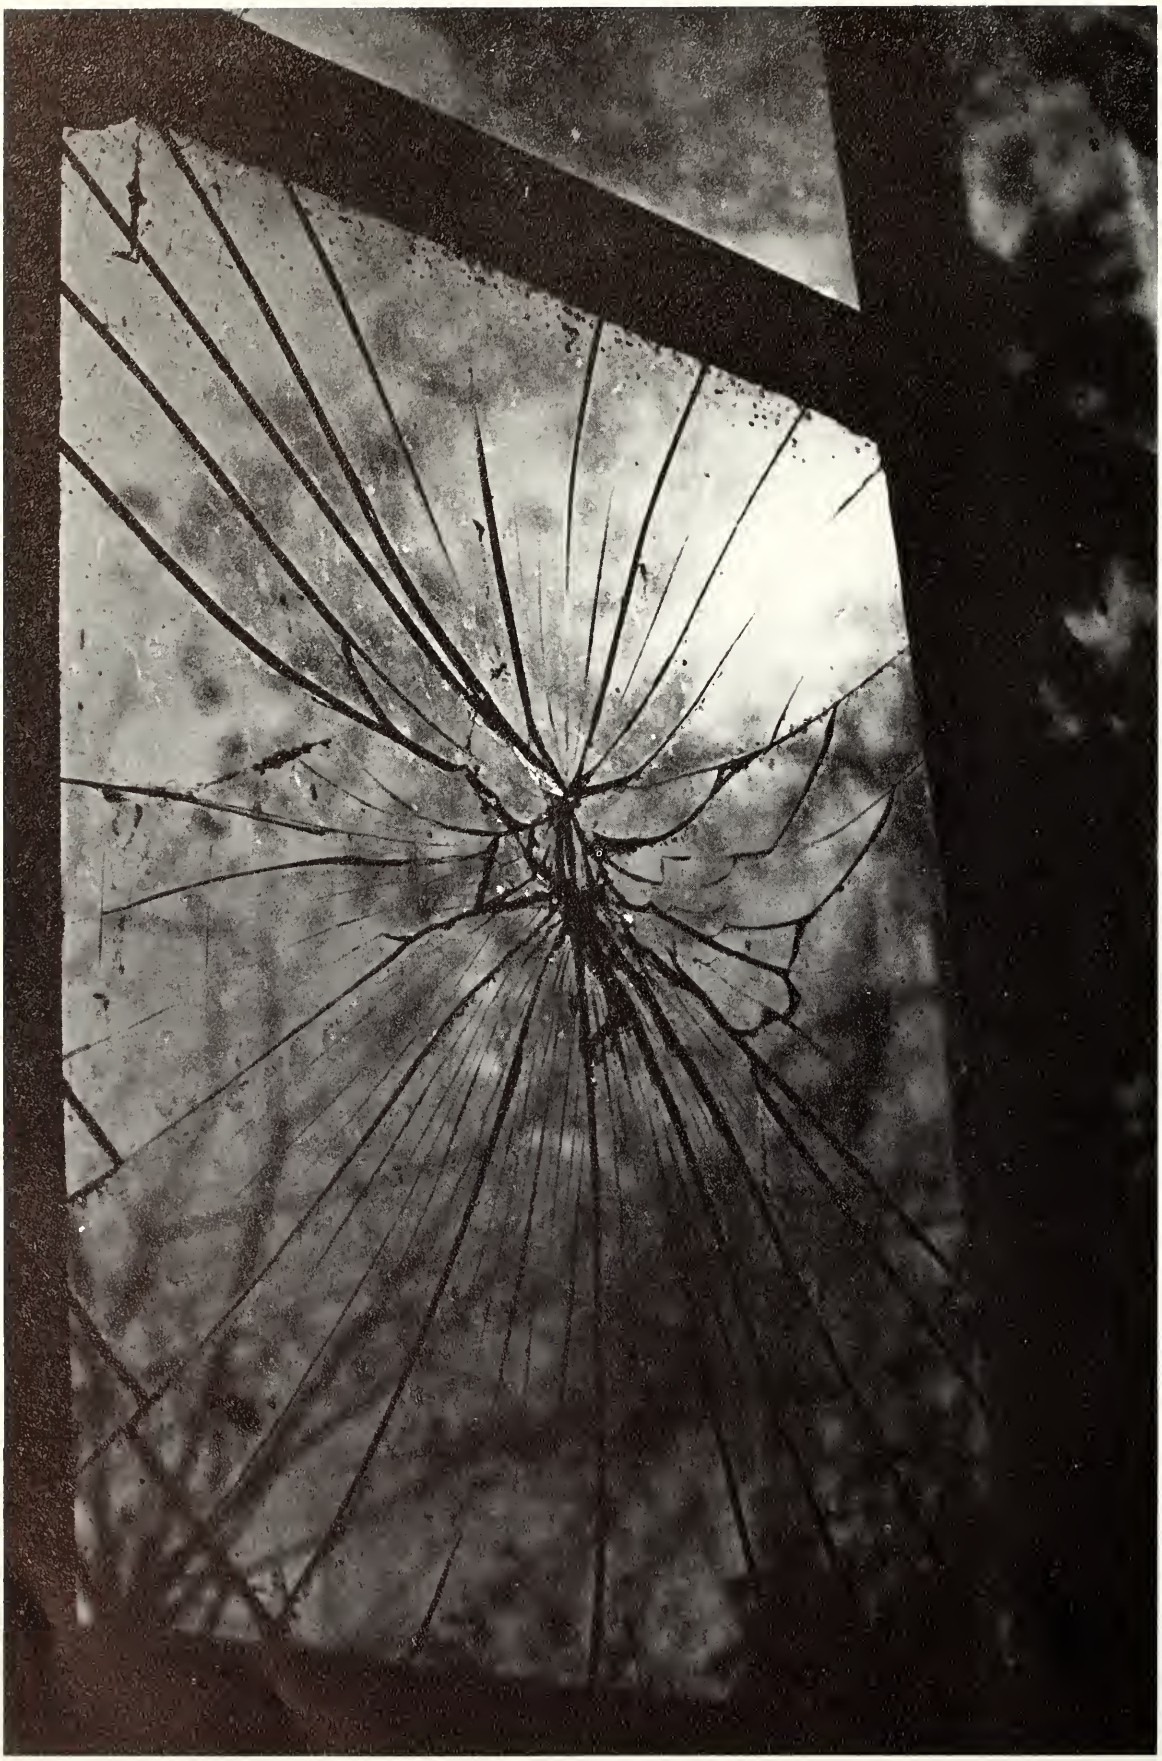
he could live at peace
with other men,
all earth's other
creatures,
and with himself as well.



the choice is now yours:
an awesome inheritance
passed on by less courageous forbears whose lack of foresight might seem humorous for such a creature who has seen fit
to call himself
homo sapiens.
that lack of vision
has brought the earth and
man,
the most ingenious paradox,
to the brink of extinction:
poisoned by pollutants, succumbing to his own wastes, suffering with the cancer of hatred;
humanity cries out
for help
to you

we pause to reflect on what these years have meant to us:
if we have benefited from them we know that learning is a never-ending process.
we leave these walls
to go into the real world to be altered by it — yes —

but also to effect our change upon it.
this is our challenge: not to make the world a fitter place in which to live but to make man a creature fit to live upon it.

so long my friend,
and should we never meet again —
have a good life.
